While Germany and the UK have been providing better employment opportunities to skilled migrants, there is still a call for more national and international initiatives to ensure that workers in destinations can be adequately protected. The COVID-19 pandemic has brought to light the need for a global economic pact that will ensure that workers are not exploited while working abroad.

The pandemic has shown that the international community must come together to protect the rights of workers. The current pandemic has resulted in massive job losses across the globe with migrant workers being hit the hardest. The pandemic has also resulted in the closure of many international borders, which has led to a decrease in the number of migrants.
